To the class of 1984:

What a wonderful pleasure to meet, greet, interact, and learn from RISD's class of 1984! As your new President I am honored to have shared my first year with you and to have the opportunity of participating in your Commencement. RISD is an extraordinary learning center within the visual and liberal arts. I wish you well in your professional future and look forward to a continued relationship with you as proud and talented alumni.

3. margins
4. the inessential
5. neologisms
6. American typologies
7. interpretations
8. eccentricity
9. simultaneity
10. paradox.

But we do not like:

1. the simple
2. unarguing
3. literalness
4. noise
5. historicisms
6. formula
7. nostalgic criticism
8. inarticulateness
9. spontaneous designing
10. doxa

and we like and do not like:

1. fashion
2. good taste
3. nonsense
4. science
5. theses
6. professionalism
7. programatic indeterminacy
8. the present

Ceramics

The philosophy of the Ceramics program at RISD is based on the belief that the student who can most effectively develop his or her own uniqueness will have the best chance of making a contribution to our culture.

The program initially offers an intense involvement in technique and gradually allows more freedom of expression once technical skills have been acquired. The senior year is one of search as each student pursues a personal vision. Over the years, it has been a period of fruition in which the diversity of the group of individuals comes into full bloom. This year is no exception. We are proud of our senior class and wish them the best as they pursue their careers after RISD.

Jan Halcomb

Culinary Arts

The Culinary Arts program is helping to meet the needs of the foodservice industry through a two-year program which is designed to prepare professionals for their careers in this field.

Glass

In significant ways these graduating seniors accurately represent the glass program they have been a part of for the past three years. They reflect a small community in which individuals develop a genuine concern for one another. Their diverse interests and skills mirror the lively range of artistic concerns inherent to a program where aspects of design, craft and the fine arts are frequently interconnected. It has been a particular pleasure for me to work with these individuals and I am pleased to have their enthusiasm, commitment and diversity represent the glass department.

Illustration

The Department of Illustration views its mission as one that involves more than simply the drawing and painting of pictures. In this last half of the 20th century the illustrator's role has assumed a new dimension, one that transcends the historic story-telling function. Societal and cultural factors during the postwar period directly affected the shift that occurred in which illustration became a link in a vast new visual communications process. From the simple story-telling role that it had occupied for centuries, illustration emerged as a powerful and persuasive visual tool. And with it the illustrator became entertainer, educator, persuader, decorator, reporter, but most of all, communicator, RISD Illustration recognizes that in order to communicate well, the illustrator must be skilled...not only in the kind of marks that are made upon the surface, but also skilled in making those marks meaningful to the intended audience. So skill in the making of intelligent marks becomes the goal of the RISD Department of Illustration where personal vision and innovation are encouraged, where freedom to experiment is always possible, and above all else, where challenge becomes the opportunity for growth.

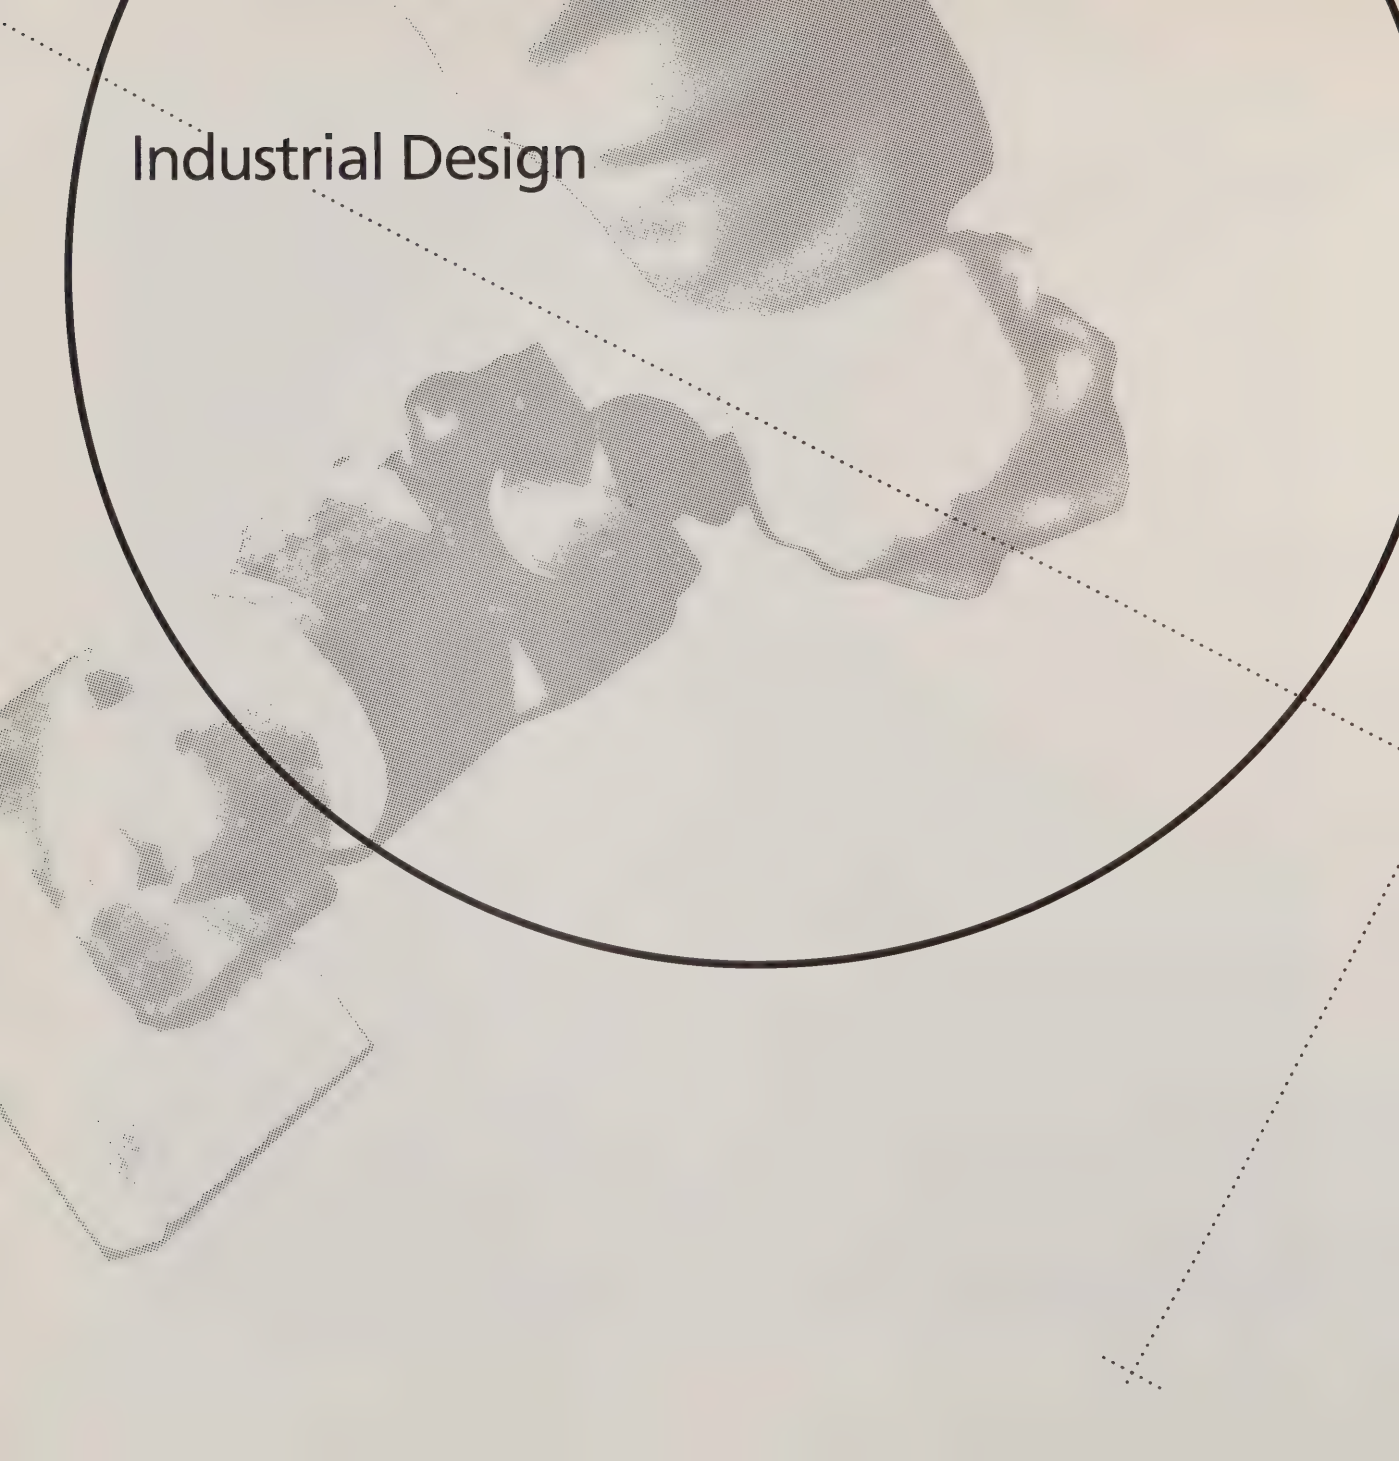
Industrial Design



The goal of the Industrial Design department is to educate students to identify and resolve design problems innovatively (within a context) which responds positively to the improvement of the social and physical environment in which we live.

Jewelry and Metals

Jewelry and metalsmithing students do not fall within the narrowly defined area of craft. Instead a broader spectrum of endeavor is encouraged which allows students to discover where their sensibilities lie. Students are encouraged to explore and experiment with concepts and materials within this profession.

Painting

At the onset of the technological revolution during the sixties, artists were feeling compelled to make chaos in order to break down the established institutions of thought and bureaucracy. As society progresses into the eighties a shift is occurring. Artists seem compelled to reanalyze the former values discarded in the upheaval period of the sixties. In this middle period we are seeking a new order to which to adhere. The need to reintegrate our work with our lives is ever present; sometimes to the point where it is difficult to distinguish between the two. Nonetheless, it is the obscure pursuit of a balance between order and chaos which motivates us. It is a momentary glimpse of the whole which satisfies us. And truth becomes the moment.

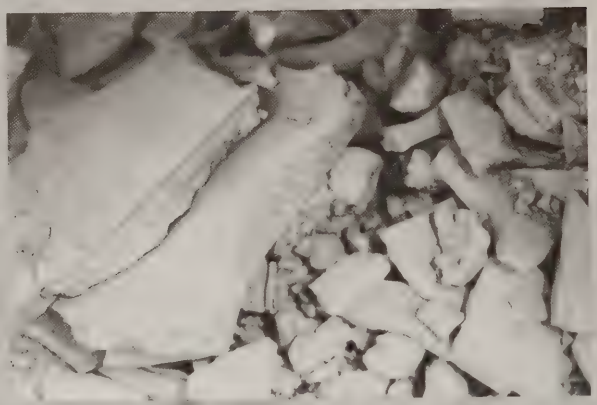
Sculpture



In the last half of the twentieth century, sculpture has developed to a point where materials and concepts are virtually limitless. The students in the sculpture department have accepted this as a fact and have developed their own strong sensibilities and an honest perspective toward the art world.

Teacher Education

The Department of Teacher Education continues RISD's longstanding commitment to the preparation of art teachers for the nation's schools. We are proud that the Providence teacher of 1983 and the Rhode Island teacher of 1982, were both art teachers and graduates of RISD's Department of Teacher Education.

In these times of pressure to reform education, RISD stands firm in its commitment to do all it can to provide quality art education, as well as support and recognize exemplary art teachers and their programs.

A note:

The typeface chosen for the yearbook is known as Frutiger; named after its designer Adrian Frutiger, a Swiss type designer and artist.

The typeface was originally designed in 1975 for use as signage at the Charles de Gaulle Airport in Paris. The designer wanted to develop a sans serif typeface that shared some of the characteristics of earlier sans serif typefaces, but at the same time wanted to avoid a dated appearance to his new design. In his own words Adrian Frutiger writes in his book Type Design Sign: "...the choice fell to a robust typeface, neither too clinically constructed in appearance nor too elegantly curving in its line..."

Frutiger remains a popular typeface due to its beautiful curves and weights as well as its logical and precise design.
